Governor Ames promised, in view of this statement by them, that he was willing to meet their views as far as he could, and to that end promised he would order all the militia companies, which had been ordered out, to return home without arms. The arms of several companies organized should be deposited in depots in the neighborhood in which the companies were raised, and should be guarded by United States soldiers, to be detailed for the purpose and to be under control and to be removed only on his order. If U. WASHINGTON CITY.

Treasury Matters.

Chicago, Oct 19.—A Washington special says: To carry into effect the specie resumption act by congress last winter the secretary of the treasury is authorized to issue any bonds of the description and character of those authorized by the refunding act of 1870. Under this authority a limited amount of 5 per cent bonds has been issued; whether any further issue of the bonds bearing six per cent interest will be made under the specie resumption act must of course depend on circumstances. The first section authorizes and requests the secretary of the treasury as rapidly as practicable to cause to be coined at the mints of the United States silver coins and to issue them, etc. The third section authorizes him to sell bonds at par in gold bearing 4½ and 4 per cent interest as he may elect. While placing a loan bearing 5 per cent the secretary could not of course dispose of bonds bearing a lower rate of interest. Under the specie resumption act he is bound to obey the requirements of that act, therefore he was obliged to issue bonds bearing the same rate of interest, 5 per cent, as those being issued when the remaining twenty-eight millions of 5 per cent loan had been subscribed and the secretary in the conversion of 5-20s is confined to issuing bonds bearing 4½ per cent. It is probable that any bonds that may be issued under this resumption act will be 4½ per cent. In the issue of bonds under this act those issued or which may be hereafter issued at the rate of 5 per cent become redeemable at the option of the government after May first 1881 while bonds that may be issued under the same act bearing 4½ per cent. interest, will not be redeemable till after 15 years from date of issue. Five per cent. bonds issued from this time forward may be redeemed at the pleasure of the government after May first 1881 whereas the 4½ per cent. bonds will have fifteen years from the date of issue, or nearly three times longer than the per cents.

THE TERRITORIES

The debt of Owyhee county was reduced $5,000 last year

Six hundred tons of wheat were delivered at the Walla Walla railroad station last week

Nearly 1,500,000 pounds of crude bullion passed over the Utah Southern railroad last month

Frank Orselli of Walla Walla, has made 300 gallons of wine out of 6,000 lbs of grapes this year

The railroad is completed to the city of Walla Walla by the present writing, in all probability.

Two pack trains, with about 6,000 pounds of apples left Walla Walla this week for the Montana mines.

The Owyhee Avalanche, which has been running on a very small scale for about a week, is again at hand, full size, its power press which was broken having been repaired

The Denver News says: Brigham Young met President Grant at the depot in Salt Lake and tendered him the hospitalities of the harem during his sojourn in Zion. The President politely declined.

The Olympia Echo says: "Last Wednesday morning, Henry Blodgett, P Tarpin, Fred Burr and Willis Hawk, went down to Wallace's island, to hunt deer and shoot bear. They returned to this city last night with five deer."

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "Owing to the penitentiary walls, Lee and Dame were prevented from attending conference but the man who counseled the Mountain Meadows massacre was the center of attraction and pranced around like a bull in a China shop."

The voting at Olympia last Saturday, for a special tax to build the wharf and road on the west side was a decided evidence that the citizens mean to build up a city on the head waters of Puget Sound. The polls were open only in the first ward, and the vote stood as follows: For the tax, 113 against 27; necessary majority 94 overplus 19

The Utah Gentile paper says: "Without purse or scrip 105 Mormon missionaries are to be let loose upon a long suffering country. Eastern papers are complaining long and loud about the depredations of tramps but when these gentle Latter-Day fellows some of whom participated in the Mountain Meadows massacre get among them, locks and keys will be in great demand, and chickens will perch on the highest limbs."

The Walla Walla Spirit of the West says: "From amongst a collection of territorial stones we notice among the marbles a fine specimen of dark green variegated marble, known as the [illegible] the Brocco of the Italians a truly beautiful stone. This stone is susceptible of the highest polish. It is comparatively soft and easily worked and is found in great abundance in Stevens county upon the Columbia river. This may prove in time a mine of wealth, for it equals if not surpasses, the Italian marble."

Two men started from Walla Walla for the [illegible] county fair last week with a wagon load of candy nuts, etc. The wagon broke down in the Blue mountains and one staid to guard the freight while the other went back to get the wagon repaired. Whilst he was gone a bear visited the camp, drove off the guard and ate all the candy and sweetmeats they had with them. It also ate and destroyed quite a lot of apples and provisions. This spoiled the outfit they had laid in for the purpose of keeping a stand on the fair grounds

LETTER FROM OLYMPIA

Olympia, W T, Oct 18, 1875

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The Legislature has been in session two weeks to-day, and during that time the session has been characterized by a degree of harmony and good feeling, not only between the two houses, but also between every individual member of the legislative body. Party has been thrown aside, and both sides seem to consider only the general good of the territory, and it is earnestly hoped that this feeling may continue thus to the end. The only matter that has caused any discussion worth mentioning is the subject of dividing Walla Walla county, so as to form the new county of Ping. The bill on its second reading was referred to a select committee consisting of the Walla Walla delegation, and in due course this committee brought in a majority and minority report, the former introducing a substitute bill and the latter being satisfied with the original as it stood. The matter was then made the special order for Friday last, but the members not being ready to vote, it was made the special order for to-day (Monday), and at 2 o'clock, which was the hour designated the bill was referred to a select and disinterested committee, with instructions to report to-morrow morning.

Several important bills are now on the table awaiting action on this one, and it is hoped a satisfactory conclusion may be reached. In connection with this matter I might state that one of these bills provides for paying the treasurer of Walla Walla county $1,000 per annum, the sheriff $400 county commissioners $4 per day, mileage 10 cents per mile, assessor $400.

Mr Miller seems to have the welfare of his constituents at heart, and has introduced many important measures in relation to Island county.

H B 31 introduced by Mr Karr for the removal of obstructions in Gray's Harbor and Whiskah river is an important one, and may turn out to be a vast benefit to that region. It passed.

A bill has been introduced by Mr La Due which defines libel and slander and provides for the punishment thereof. The libeller or his assistant is liable to be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or by fine not exceeding $1,000, and the punishment for slander is one half of the above. It is possible that the bill may be so amended as to provide for suits for damages.

H B 36, introduced on Saturday, is for damages sustained by John McFail in the burning of his building by an escaped lunatic, the amount claimed being $150.

H B 27 by Mr Richardson, provides for offering rewards for the permanent cure of insane persons at certain stated times, and is I think a good bill, the object evidently being to restore the patient to his friends as early as possible and do away with anything which might have the appearance of making money out of insanity.

Near the conclusion of Saturday's session Mr Wood moved that H B 11 prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors on election days be taken from the table. When taken up Mr Grencil moved that it be made the special order for November 27th, which of course was equivalent to an indefinite postponement. The motion however, was lost and after Mr Hughes had spoken in its favor it was read a third time, and passed by 10 ayes to 9 noes. The bill is a good one but I fear that to make it effective it will require amendment which may possibly take place in the council where it now is.

C M No 3 presented by Mr Bradshaw in the council to-day, has a most worthy object in view, that of praying congress to compensate an old and respected citizen of the territory for services performed by him between April 30 1853, and April 1, 1857. The gentleman's name is Francis W Pettygrove, and the office that he held was that of clerk of the U S district court at Port Townsend. Mr Pettygrove was introduced to the house and stated that the claim, amounting to about $1,700 had been forwarded to Washington several years ago and an answer had been returned to him by the second auditor that the matter would be attended to, but since that time nothing has been done or said on the subject, and he is therefore compelled to lay it before the legislature for their action. The house although generally opposed to legislating on back claims yet thought themselves justified in this case in passing the memorial unanimously.

The area of Lake county is about 11,000 square miles. The assessment of 1875 returns 2,817 horses and mules 20,118 sheep 730 hogs and 12,130 head of cattle. The products of the previous year as returned by the county assessor are 5,676 bushels wheat 3,953 bushels oats 1,882 bushels barley 130 bushels rye 155 bushels corn 1,175 bushels potatoes 176 tons of hay 12,[illegible] pounds butter 6860 tons [illegible] 10,840 pounds wool and 185,000 feet lumber

There were 400 people rendered homeless by the fire at Fairview Idaho on the 11th inst says an exchange which is about as many as were in the place

It is reported that the race horse Twenty One has been sold for $100 to Gen Miller of Salem and Ben Snipes of Wasco county.

It may be utilized in various ways as follows: By placing the products exhibited directly on the floor, by constructing a low platform upon which they may be placed, by erecting counters on which they may be arranged, by erecting ornamental columns, pyramids, cones, and partitions to obtain wall space by erecting show cases in which the exhibits may be tastefully displayed

SHOW CASES.

16 There will be no charge for space, but all platforms, counters ornamental partitions, show cases and appurtenances, must be erected at the expense of the exhibitor. No particular form or design is prescribed for the cases, counters, etc, but they must not exceed the following heights, without special permission from the chief of bureau

Show cases and partitions.—Twelve feet above the floor

Counters.—Two feet six inches above the floor, on the next side to the passage way

Platforms.—One foot above the floor

DRAWINGS

17 In order to insure the advantageous and satisfactory location of products exhibited, applicants for space desiring to erect show cases counters or partitions, must furnish to this bureau a scale drawing, or tracing showing clearly the elevation and ground plan of the same and especially indicating the sides of the cases intended to be open for inspection

RAILINGS.

18 Machinery in motion must be enclosed with railings of a uniform height of two feet six inches. Exhibitors of other articles will have the privilege of placing railings of approved design around the space allotted to them. All such railings must not exceed the height of two feet six inches above the floor level and may be attached to the case by projecting brackets, or be supported by posts from the floor. In every instance the floor space granted, includes the area embraced by the railing. The line of the railing will be placed upon the line of the passage way, and no railing will be allowed to project beyond the case or counter into the passage way

PENDANTS FROM THE ROOF

19 Exhibitors desiring to display products pendant from the roof trusses, must in every case obtain special permission to that effect from the chief of bureau

No exhibitor will be permitted to display products in such a manner as to obstruct the light or vistas through the avenues and aisles, or occasion inconvenience injury or disadvantageously affect the display of other exhibitors

SIGNS

20 Signs will not be allowed to project beyond the floor area of the space allotted, nor will signs made of canvass or paper be permitted. The size of all signs will be subject to approval

SPECIAL INSTALLATION

21 The nave avenues aisles and public passage ways remain under the control of the United States Centennial Commission and no trophies, decorations portals fountains or other special exhibits will be permitted in them except by special permission of the director general.

LOCATION

22 Each column within the building will be lettered and numbered, the numbers designating the lines of columns lengthwise, from south to north and the letters the lines crosswise, from west to east. Each exhibitor will have his location defined with reference to the nearest column, and the official directory of the building will give the positions according to this system

CARDS

23 Cards supplied by the centennial commission may be affixed to goods stating the exhibitors name address and place of manufacture class of objects, catalogue number and price

Exhibitors' business cards circulars and samples may be placed within their space for distribution but visitors shall not be solicited to receive them

PERMIT FOR SPACE

24 When the allotment for space is definitely made each exhibitor will be notified and furnished with a permit for space

ENTRY OF GOODS

25 All exhibits must be entered at the office of the chief of the bureau of agriculture, and before unpacking or arranging the articles, the entry must be endorsed on the permit for space

DELIVERY OF GOODS.

26 All products arriving at the doors of the building by rail, wagon, or otherwise, will be received by the bureau of transportation and delivered on the space granted. Each exhibitor will then be expected to unpack and arrange his goods without delay. Provision has been made for the removal and safe storage of empty boxes and cases immediately after unpacking

LIVE STOCK

27 The live stock exhibition will be held during the months of September and October, 1876. Special rules and regulations will be issued on the subject

28 The chief of the bureau of agriculture has charge of the allotment of space to exhibitors

29 The right to alter or amend these rules is reserved.

OREGON

A dog showing evident symptoms of hydrophobia was killed near Salem last Monday.

Farmers throughout this valley are ready and in many cases anxious for the rain to come and soften the ground for the fall plowing

Mr Luttrell, who had been visiting friends in Douglas county for a few days, left Oakland on the northern bound train on Monday morning last.

A Salem man who had 93 chances in various articles raffled at the state fair, and did not win anything, says "raffles are the worst kind of gambling"

The contract for carrying the mail from The Dalles to Ochoco has been given to Hester & Luckey who are performing the service, in a manner very satisfactory to the public

There is said to be a crazy man on Wild Horse creek in Umatilla county, who is giving the people a good deal of trouble. The authorities should see that his case is attended to

E M Waite secretary, states that the receipts of the O. A. Society at the state fair amount to about $10,300, but the exact figures can not be given until the officers have time to straighten up the books

A man named Charles Knapp who was for a long time addicted to strong drink, was found dead in his shanty in Salem last Saturday. Intoxicating liquors, disease of the heart, and an apoplectic fit, proved too much for him, so the coroner's jury in substance said.

The Monmouth Messenger of the 15th says that the foundation of the new church is finished, and is a first-class piece of work, being of rough stone, laid without mortar. We never have seen as smooth work with that style of material. The sills are in place, and the building will soon take a definite shape.

The Baker City Democrat says: "On Monday, the 4th inst, Mr J W Virtue run a gold and silver brick, worth four dollars to the ounce, weighing 647 ounces, the result of four days' run of the Green Discovery mill, from rock from Green's ledge in Rye valley. The mill is in good running order, and will be kept constantly at work pounding out the precious metals. The future of the Rye valley mines, from present indications, is very bright."

A correspondent at Prineville, Wasco Co., under date of Oct. 14th, says: Our flouring mill owned by J. M. Allen, has been running lively since harvest. This is the only flouring mill (except the Warm Spring agency) for nearly a hundred miles from here, so that people come a long way to this mill, which has made town quite lively for the last month. The only trouble with us is there has not yet been wheat enough raised here to supply home consumption, and every spring and summer finds us hauling flour from The Dalles

LETTER FROM SEATTLE

Seattle, Oct 16, 1875

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The enterprising citizens of Snohomish Co are holding their fair this week, and quite a number of our citizens went down early in the week. We understand that the fair so far has been well attended, and that the management have just reasons for congratulation in this success.

HOTEL NEEDED

Seattle greatly needs a good hotel. Very many persons come here from San Francisco, and being unable to get lodgings, are compelled to go on up Sound, when, if they could secure accommodations here, they would stay. Of the 105 people who came by the Pacific a large number were compelled to use their own blankets and the bare floors of warehouses, etc. This need acts very materially against the interests of Seattle and it is strange some enterprising party does not invest in this business here

WEATHER.

Heavy fogs have prevailed for the last week in this vicinity, proving a serious obstacle to navigation and causing the mail steamers to fall behind their usually prompt appearance here

SHIPPING.

The bark Menshikoff arrived here on last Friday morning. She is loading with Talbot coal

The City of Panama came into port on Wednesday week and sailed for San Francisco on Saturday, at 10 A. M. She carried away several of our business men—gone below to lay in fall and winter goods—and a small freight.

On Wednesday night the bark Amie arrived bringing a large freight for Seattle. She will probably load with Seattle coal.

Last Thursday night the steamship Pacific arrived here, bringing 105 passengers. She sailed for San Francisco on Thursday morning with some freight and a small passenger list from here

CORNELIUS ITEMS

Cornelius, Oct. 17, 1875

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The splendid harvest, the propitious weather affording an opportune time for the grangers to sow their summer fallow, the liberal price paid for all kinds of produce, has made benign countenances for our farmers and merchants

While it is true many of our farmers might have sold their wheat for a dollar, who have been compelled to take less yet we do not hear many complaints, as they know they are the only ones in fault

The Independent thinks the average yield for grain has fallen short of its customary yield but from what I can learn it has come quite up to its wonted production. There is not so many oats, but that is owing to the small acreage compared with former seasons. As a general thing oats are lighter, per bushel measure, than last year

The potato crop falls far short of any year for a long time. Col Cornelius has about ten acres the largest crop I know of here. The estimated yield for his early rose which he has dug and sold for 75 cents a bushel is 100 bushels per acre. Potatoes are generally large and firm, so far as I can learn

The fruitcrop I believe, is up to its usual standard

Many predicted that the depot at Hillsboro and at the Grove would injure our little town but we cannot see that it has damaged us any. Cornelius is centrally located and will command a certain liberal patronage, if there should be a dozen depots near it. Our business men are generally upright and congenial gentlemen, and that goes a long way in business in holding patronage

The number of scholars at the academy is augmenting weekly, and the school is flourishing

The smallpox at the Grove has somewhat diminished the regular visitations that have hitherto been mutually exchanged between our neighbors at that place and of our town but I apprehend there is no danger now

FRUIT DRYERS

The interest at the state fair has centered very much upon the exhibitions of dried fruit. Four lots, prepared by the Alden process, have been put before the committee from four manufactories. The fruit looks alike from the four. That from the Oregon City manufactory is put up with much care and taste and arranged by ladies, with Mrs McCue's special help. Messrs. Pyle and Charman and other gentlemen of the company have given their careful attention to this display of their products, that it may give just credit to the Alden process, and truly exhibit the remarkable fitness of our soil and climate for fruit raising. They intend also to take photographs of some of the orchards now laden with apples and pears that the panorama of fruit on the trees and in the cases may be seen at the centennial. Their pyramid of glass cases showing at a glance all kinds of dried fruit and various vegetables attracts the visitor and rewards his study of this new product. Two or three of the gentlemen attend and answer all questions to unfold the principles of their process.

Across the hall to the west Hon T McF Patton, superintendent of the Alden Fruit Manufactory at Salem, exhibits in a glass case boxes of dried fruits and vegetables just as they are prepared for the market. This company has had a year of trial. Their products have taken the first rank and the highest prices in the Eastern market. They now have orders for their dried plums from New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans and England far in excess of their supply. This process by the Alden method brings with care the same product every time so that the Salem goods in this line will not differ from those at Oregon City except in the putting up and in the quality of the fruit brought to the factory.

We do not see much chance for shoddy in these goods. Mr McF. Patton's urbanity dispels any fear or doubt of the critics.

Next to the Salem fruit is that produced by the California dryer. Its form and packing look a little like house dried fruit, and one is apt to turn away from it after seeing the even layers and tempting look of the Alden products. Mr Deitz, the proprietor is very courteous. He invites you to try his fruit, and after tasting his dried pears, so sweet, and his raisins so luscious, you feel like returning and taking your lunch from his sample boxes. His oblique, triangular box outside, starting up from a common stove, enclosed in brick, and pointing up to the pavilion like a huge wooden cannon at rest, is the factory that he sets up at from two hundred and fifty to five hundred dollars in any one's orchard, who desires to dry his fruit at home.

He claims that every fruit grower should prepare his own products for market by drying them at home and thus save a large outlay of time and cost of carrying green fruit to the factory, and also the profits which the manufacturer makes. When you question his process of compelling hot air and vapor to move up obliquely instead of perpendicularly, as in the Alden process, he replies, that the vapor leaves his fruit and passes out through a flat chamber above, that the dry air seals his fruit immediately, and that it becomes perfectly dried in the hot air afterwards. He claims that his upper shelf covered with glass has the double benefit of the hot air and the sun's rays, the latter of which he affirms are essential to make a good raisin.

The American Dryer, which had a portable model on the ground, is said to work on much the same principle. The Albany factory, lately erected for the Alden process, sent some fruit which averages with the best by that method.

The Plummer Dryer had three small boxes, one of peaches and two of plums, which looked even and clear. But some of their fruit bought in the market was dark, as if burnt. The rotary method suggests danger of scorching, and thus of uneven products.

But there are two principles which must be considered and clearly settled before the fruit drying business can be made a complete success.

The first is the effect of the process upon the fruit. Is the life of the fruit retained when the water is entirely expelled? Will the dried seeds of apples and pears germinate, if planted afterwards, or are they cooked and killed by any one or every one of the new processes. The dried wheat taken from the winding sheets of the mummies, entombed thousands of years ago, will sprout and produce the wheat of the old Egyptians. The sun dried Pemmican, formerly so much used by the trappers and fur traders of the interior, had a certain freshness and life when moistened, although months or years old. The sun dried apples and pears and vegetables of our old fashioned farm habits retained their freshness when prepared for the table. The trouble with the sun process is its lack of care and of uniform products, and its exposure to dust and rains and moths, which deposit their eggs in the exposed fruit, and render it unfit for distant markets. But the sun is the best drier. It seldom cooks the fruit. Yet apples sun cooked on one side are unfit for market. Colonel Bidwell of California buys thousands of feet of boards annually on which to spread his vast fruit harvests and prepare them for the markets. He is now adopting one or more of the dryers for his own fruit ranch. But the question will return: Is the fruit to be cooked or dried? If the sugar of the fruit is burnt, it becomes caramel "a black porous substance soluble in water, forming a dark brown solution." It is used to color brandy and other spirits. Apples burnt in cooking deposit this product in the ovens and kettles used.

One aim of the Alden process in using its upright shaft is to keep the fruit in its own vapor so as to retain its life while expelling its moisture. This fact has not been very distinctly stated, and its tests have not been made yet upon all seeds. But its dried tomatoes have sprouted. Will its whole dried prunes or plums, or peaches sprout if put in the earth? When you bake an apple you do not break the skin. The heat seals up the pores with the sugar or saccharine juice and cooks the inner pulp in its own moisture, but that cooked apple would be a poor product to send to a distant market, exposed to all changes of weather. If eaten at once it is good. Time and air make it stale.

If the slice of an apple is sealed rigidly by its heated saccharine juice and a portion of its inner pulp is left to cook in dry air, will it not be a dead product put on the market, liable, like all dead products, to retake moisture and ferment, or to be insipid?

But if the pores of the fruit are kept unsealed by the enclosing vapor until all the moisture has gone leaving only the dry tissue of the plant, or fibre of the flesh will not this product be the nearest approach to the true sun dried fruit and the one to be preserved indefinitely for use or transport to any market? This is the desideratum.

The second subject to be considered is a uniform product in large supply to be furnished. The butter and cheese markets of the world must have large factories for each product instead of depending upon common farm house supply which is so precarious and varied in kind and quantity.

If Oregon fruit is to go to distant marts like our wheat and salmon it must be put up of in uniform quality in uniform style and in merchantable quantities. Business men will not collect lots of dried fruit put up here and there by all sorts of farmers, in all styles, some neat, others slovenly. This product must have the trade mark and samples for inspection, trial and sale in distant counting rooms, and its shipments must conform to its samples, or the business must fail at the outset. Mr A. and B. and C and D., all around the country, cannot get up a trade mark and put their goods on the market. It is their work to raise the raw material and let the large central establishment manufacture the goods. What wool grower can make his cassimeres and blankets? What orchardist can send his plums to New York and London for sale?

Such facts and questions must enter into the dried fruit problem.

We are grateful that the drying processes already begun among us are solving the problem for Oregon.

Already the samples have been forwarded and the orders have begun to come and to be repeated. This business bids fair to take rank with other leading enterprises of our industrial and commercial community. A.

THE ASYLUM CONTROVERSY

Oysterville, Oct 17, 1875

To the Editor of the Oregonian

I herewith mail to your address "A supplement to the late asylum controversy by members of the Medical Society of Washington Territory."

This "controversy" has existed two years, and though the charges made in the supplement referred to are of the most revolting character and backed by responsible men, who thus far go unchallenged, it has never yet been adequately brought before the public.

Therefore a petition from citizens of Pacific county was recently forwarded to the territorial legislature, now in session, asking for an investigation of these charges, and, provided the charges were sustained, pronouncing their opinion that the offenders should be brought to justice. The reading of this petition was suppressed by the speaker (modest assumption in a speaker of his calibre), on the ground of unsuitable language. With an intelligent public, and we believe with the Oregonian, the time has come where respectful language, however strong, is not unsuited to qualify baseness wherever manifested, and more particularly in this case, when charges of such enormity are preferred by two former resident physicians of the insane asylum whose character for truthfulness remains unimpeached.

Trusting that the public may be informed as to the merits of this "controversy" I retire

Your most obedient servant,
M S GRISWOLD

A Soft Answer.—The husband was of quick temper and often inconsiderate. They had not been married a year, when, one day, in a fit of hasty wrath he said to his wife:

"I want no correction from you. If you are not satisfied with my conduct you can return to your home whence I took you and find happiness with your kind."

"If I leave you," returned the unhappy wife "will you give me back that which I brought to you?"

"Every dollar. I covet not your wealth, you shall have it all back."

"Ah," she answered, "I mean not the wealth of gold. I thought not of dress. I mean my maiden heart—my first and only love—my buoyant hopes and the promised blessings of my womanhood. Can you give these to me?"

A moment of thought—of convulsion—and then taking her to his arms:

"No, no my wife, I can not do that, but I will do more, I will keep them henceforth unsullied and unpained. I cherish your blessings as my own and never again, God helping me, will I forget the pledge I gave at the holy altar when you gave your peace and happiness to my keeping."

How true it is that "a soft answer turneth away wrath," and how many oh how many of the bitter strifes of domestic life might be avoided by remembering and acting in accordance therewith.

Sidney Smith cut the following from a newspaper and preserved it for himself: "When you rise in the morning, form the resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow creature. It is easily done: a left-off garment to the man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving—trifles in themselves light as air—will do at least for the twenty-four hours. And if you are young depend on it, it will tell when you are old and if you are old rest assured it will send you gently and happily down the stream of time to eternity. By the most simple arithmetical sum look at the result. If you send one person away happily through the day that is 365 in the course of a year. And suppose you live forty years only after you commence that course of medicine, you have made 14,600 persons happy—at all events for a time."

The waters deluge man with rain, oppress him with hail, and drown him with inundations; the air rushes in storms, prepares the tempest or lights up the volcano but the earth, gentle and indulgent, ever subservient to the wants of man spreads his walks with flowers and his table with plenty, returns with interest every good committed to her care, and though she produces the poison, she supplies the antidote; though constantly teased more to furnish the luxuries of man than his necessities, yet even to the last, she continues her kind indulgence, and when life is over she piously covers his remains in her bosom.—Pliny

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 20, 1875.

THE CAMPAIGN EAST OF THE MOUNTAINS.

Letters from Eastern Oregon represent the political canvass proceeding quietly and the people taking very little interest in political questions. The Democrats will not vote unanimously for Mr Lane. Some have expressed their purpose to vote for Warren and some will not vote at all. It is estimated that between these two classes Mr Lane will lose a considerable number of the votes usually cast for the Democracy. There will be a few stay at home voters among the Republicans also, but it is thought Lane will sustain greater loss in this way than Warren. The vote for Mr Whitney will be very light on that side the mountains, most of the Independents considering that they have succeeded in removing the worst features of partisan politics, and hence concluding to vote for Warren or Lane according to their individual preferences and holding themselves in readiness to act independently in the future if circumstances should seem to demand it.

One thing we hear which greatly surprises us. It is that Mr Whitney and Mr Lane (who appear to be in perfect accord) are making the assertion publicly that Mr Whitney will command the entire independent vote of the valley. We should be glad to believe our information as to the course of these candidates is incorrect for they can not but know that the vote of Mr Whitney in the valley will be a mere handful. He will receive a respectable vote in Washington, Polk and Douglas counties, a smaller but not wholly inconsiderable support in Benton. Outside these counties his vote will be just enough to be recorded as scattering. It is not our purpose to disparage Mr Whitney's claims if he has any to the suffrages of the people nor to underestimate his strength. But what we have said is the truth whether we would have it so or not. He will not receive 2,000 votes in the State and the chances are that the count will show that 1,000 is nearer the right figure than 2,000. The vote in Western Oregon will be divided between Lane and Warren and we can scarcely imagine that Mr Whitney is so blinded by the circumstances connected with his present position as not to know it.

CHANDLER APPOINTED SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

The deed is done. Ex-Senator Chandler is Secretary of the Interior. This is an unfortunate supplement to the appointment of Bristow, Jewell and Pierrepont. The whole country will feel a sense of disappointment. Chandler is generally set down among the people as one of the men of extended reputation who represents the advanced immorality of national politics. The demand of the times is for manly and cleanly men as well as men of ability in the public service. It may be saying too much upon no better information than general rumor, to say Chandler is not one of that description; but it is certainly true that common fame sets him down in a class altogether different. And common fame cannot safely be ignored in this popular government of ours. Nor ought it to be ignored if it could be. Our officers, especially our cabinet ministers, should be not only men of exemplary lives, which rumor says Mr. Chandler is not, but men under the tongues of good report, which certainly he is not.

Possibly the President construes the Ohio election as a license from the people to stop the cleansing and sweetening of the atmosphere about the White House, which was so well begun under the admonition of the elections of last fall. If so he is making a mistake. Such an interpretation of the Republican victory in Ohio would, we are persuaded, prove a great misfortune to the party. It can not be denied that the attitude of the people toward the administration has become more friendly of late, and this change is referable mainly to the evidences lately given by the President of a purpose to reconstruct his privy council and tone up the public service generally. But this last appointment does not tend in that direction and will, unless we greatly misapprehend the temper of the times, be regarded with undisguised disfavor in the Republican party at the East. If a vote of the people were taken to-day between Delano and Chandler for Secretary of the Interior the chances would be in favor of the former.

THAT TREATY.

It is pleasant to be able to record that a "treaty of peace" has been concluded between the Democrats of Mississippi and Governor Ames. If the high contracting parties are satisfied with the terms of the "treaty" we see no reason why other people should not be. But it is pertinent to inquire whether the rights and privileges of the negroes concerning whom the war was declared have been secured. The real difficulty is between the white citizens of the United States and of Mississippi as a class and colored citizens as a class, and unless the reciprocal rights and duties of the two classes have been definitely settled the treaty will prove to be a rope of sand. We have no great faith in the putting up of such matters by a few self appointed political leaders of each side. They generally turn out to be obstructions instead of helps to the maintenance of the rights of those whose rights are most in jeopardy. Still if this "treaty" shall bring quiet to Mississippi even for a short time, it will be a blessing. The treaty most needed in Mississippi however is a treaty to extend throughout the South by which the White Leaguers will be held to their good behavior toward the negroes under penalty of personal danger from the courts of justice and the fomenters of jealousy and disorder among the negroes will be held under like penalty for [illegible] plying their nefarious avocation.

No[illegible] for a Republican meeting. The [illegible] will take place next Monday [illegible] Republican [illegible] We [illegible] good lift.

THE "ASYLUM CONTROVERSY."

Possessing no further information regarding the "asylum controversy" than what is contained in the letters of our correspondents we give our readers the story of each. Our regular reporter of the Legislature speaks in very complimentary terms of the manner in which those unfortunate persons who are sent to that institution are cared for, while Mr Griswold, a gentleman of unquestioned standing, urges attention to the pamphlet issued by Doctors Hemenway and Wilson, formerly attending physicians of the institution, in which grave charges are made of maltreatment of the inmates of the institution. Without entering further into this controversy it is proper to say that the subject is one of such high importance to the public that nothing further ought to be required to secure a prompt and thorough investigation, than the mere fact that charges have been made by respectable and responsible persons. If such an investigation has not already been made it should be. The deep sympathy which every person feels for those who are bereft of their reason and restrained of their liberty in consequence thereof is always a sufficient argument to overcome any objection that may be made upon grounds of economy to the making of any provision necessary for the comfort of insane patients.

According to report General E. L. Applegate in his speech at Eugene last week laid the blame for the dissensions in the ranks of the Republican party mainly on President Grant. We need not say we have not the greatest admiration for the President as the political head of a great party, but we can not agree with the General that the ills that have come upon the party are attributable wholly or mainly to Grant. His part in the matter has rather that he has not prevented than that he has procured the misdoing which has brought about the disaffections. The active agents have been the men to whom he has committed the affairs of the country, and not himself. His fault has been that he has listened to bad advisers or neglected the counsel of good advisers while subordinates have run riotous course with the public service. Grant has shown little of that vicious activity which made the administration of Andrew Johnson so shamelessly indecent. On the contrary he has generally left to his department officers the entire control of public affairs rousing up only at intervals in a spasmodic effort to straighten the crooked ways into which the government had gone under the guidance of others.

With the collapse of Carlism in Spain comes increased vigor in the prosecution of the war in Cuba. It seems almost a generation since the Cuban insurrection commenced. If we recollect aright that rebellion was contemporaneous with the civil war in this country which was brought to a close more than ten years ago and still the enterprising banditti commonly spoken of as the "Cuban patriots" are unsubdued. Spain herself has gone through all the metamorphoses from kingdom to republic and from republic to kingdom again since the patriot robbers began their glorious work, and still are robbing and burning as persistently as ever. The imbecile and priestridden government of Alfonso is but a caricature, but Carlism is a crime against humanity—and the Cuban rebellion a monstrosity. Carlism is now a mere remnant, offering no serious obstruction to the operations of Spain against the "patriots" of the West Indian colony, and it is to be hoped the end of the Cuban war may come speedily. Civilized people are tired of hearing of the bogus military operations that have so long devastated "the Gem of the Antilles."

One of the most striking illustrations we have seen of the fact that politics makes strange bedfellows is the candidacy of Teakle Wallis for Attorney General of Maryland, on the Republican ticket. During the "late unpleasantness" he was the most rabid and uncompromising Southern firebrand in Maryland and leader of that sort of society in Baltimore. He spent a considerable part of the four years of the rebellion in Fort Lafayette, as a political prisoner, but his incarceration wholly failed to cool his ardor for the Southern cause. In connection with his nomination by the Republicans one can not help thinking what a happy effect might be produced by having Senator Morton canvass Maryland with his bloody shirt speech.

The inflation Democracy cite France as an example of the good results of having plenty of paper money, whereas the fact is that the only paper currency in France—that is notes of the Bank of France—is to be payable in specie after January 1, 1878, one year earlier than the time fixed by law for the return to specie payments in this country. Furthermore as a preparation for redemption, the notes of the Bank of France are constantly being called in, and the volume of paper currency is becoming less every day. Its volume has been reduced about $93,000,000 since the Franco German war. And this period of reduction is the period of prosperity to which the Democratic orators point.

Mr Thomas Jefferson Randolph, the last surviving grandson of Thomas Jefferson died on the 8th instant at his home near Charlottesville, Va. He was the son of Governor Randolph, and was chairman of the Baltimore convention of 1872, which nominated Horace Greeley for President. He was the editor of a four volume edition of the works of Jefferson.

It is said there will be some very musical developments in the course of the trial of Dan Smith for robbing the United States mail. The mysteries connected with the missing pouch have not all been explained yet if we are correctly advised. We shall see what we shall see.

CITY.

NEEDS ATTENTION Our attention has been directed frequently of late to the miserable condition of the intersection of Front and Pine streets. When Front street was being improved by laying Nicolson pavement it was thought best to leave a portion of the thoroughfare unimproved at the intersection of Pine so as to enable the former street. Some to be laid across the former street. Some weeks ago the pavement was laid and not long after work was recommenced to place the sewer down. So far as can be observed the contractor has suspended operations and everything remains stationary. Meanwhile the constant travel along that portion of the unimproved street has rendered it next to impassable. Only a few days more of rainy weather is required to render the crossing a deep ugly mudhole. If there is any unavoidable detention in the work of laying the sewer a temporary plank crossing should be placed down, until the regular pavement could be substituted. Before the intersection becomes impassable, the street commissioner should cause the necessary improvement to be made.

SUPERINTENDENT RETURNED On Monday Mr Lamb, superintendent of this division of the Western Union Telegraph Company who in company with Mr Crouch, general repairer, started for Yreka some time ago to inspect the lines returned home. He was absent from the city more than two weeks. Between here and Yreka the lines were closely inspected, and slight repairs made wherever needed. The lines are now reported to be in splendid condition for winter service. Arriving at Yreka Mr. Lamb started back, while Crouch continued on to French gulch where he has friends residing. Last evening a dispatch was received here from Yreka, stating that Mr Crouch had reached that point on his way to Portland. It may be a gratifying announcement to make to Mr Crouch's numerous friends here that he comes not alone having secured a life partner during his brief visit to California. John has bid a long farewell to bachelorhood and is now a benedict. He will arrive here with his bride in a few days.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY.—Frank Brown, a ... well known in this city, was arrested last ... ing on a charge of larceny and lodged in jail. Complaint was preferred against Brown by a person named Chas Dobson charging defendant with the crime of stealing from him (Dobson) the sum of $40 in gold coin. Brown, when taken to the jail declared that he had no money, but on being searched by Captain Brannan two $20 gold pieces were found on his person. Several of those who stated that they saw Brown purloin the money told him that if he would restore the sum they would not prosecute him. But he persisted in declaring that the money found in his pocket was his own, and declined to relinquish his claim to the sum. He was lodged in jail until this morning, when a hearing will be had of the case.

FUNERAL OBSEQUIES.—Yesterday afternoon the funeral obsequies of the late John Wagner took place from the residence of the deceased, corner of Alder and Second streets. The remains were followed to their last resting place by large delegations from the Turn Verein and ... Societies, of which organizations ... was an honored member in life, and a long cortege of carriages, in which were ... sorrowing relations and sympathizing friends. Preceding the funeral procession marched the Portland City Band, discoursing in subdued strains the melancholy dirge. With slow and measured tread the cortege ... for the Lone Fir Cemetery where the body was committed to the silence and forgetfulness of the grave.

TRAIN DELAYED.—Monday afternoon the freight train on the east-side road was delayed several hours owing to some ties giving away at one end of a bridge beyond Rock Island. The ... train came down to the place and ... the freight cars on the track, was delayed for a short time. However the ... was switched from the main track and the ... coaches allowed to pass on. The ... were repaired so as to permit of the ... of the passenger train over the ... the engineer was compelled to ... caution and move very ... the damaged trestle-work. Fortunately no accident occurred. At a late hour the ... train arrived at the east side depot.

HELD TO ANSWER.—Two men, named ... John Griffe and Chas Atkinson, ... yesterday morning and brought ... charged with the larceny of a ... of old scrap copper. After a ... hearing, the defendants were adjudged guilty and held to appear before the ... jury on the charge of grand larceny. Their bonds were fixed at $100 each. Not being able to furnish the required bail the defendants were committed to await the action of the grand jury now in session. The case will soon be the subject of close judicial investigation at the hands of that body.

NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.—After all, the little son of Mrs. May, who fell from the porch in front of the National hotel, on Monday afternoon, and was picked up in an insensible condition, did not sustain as severe injuries as was supposed at first. No bones were fractured, and nothing more serious than a few bruises received. Yesterday the little fellow had so far recovered as to be able to take his accustomed place at the table. The boy fell a distance of about fifteen feet striking plump upon the solid sidewalk, and it is certainly providential that he escaped with his life.

REPAIRING.—Two parties are now engaged ... and overhauling the O S N Co's ... line between here and Walla Walla. One party of repairers left the Dalles some days ago and started for Portland, while another party started for Walla Walla. It is the purpose of the company to have the lines put in the best possible condition for service before the rainy season sets in. When last heard from the party coming Portlandward was at ... They will reach here in a short time.

PEDDLING WITHOUT LICENSE.—Ah Sin, an ... celestial peddler, was arrested ... evening and escorted to the city jail. He was engaged in peddling slippers about the city, and when asked to produce his license failed to do so. This morning Ah Sin will have the matter investigated.

HULL AND BOILER INSPECTED.—A few days since the O. S. N. Co.'s handsome steamer ... was inspected by Capt. Flanders and James Lotan, United States inspectors. Both hull and boiler were found to be in excellent condition, and a new certificate issued.

ADMITTED.—In the state circuit court yesterday Wm. H. McNutt, a native of Great Britain, was admitted to citizenship.

REPUBLICAN GRAND RALLY.

Arrangements are now being made for a grand Republican rally on Saturday evening. Speaking will commence at 7 o'clock in front of the Occidental Hotel. Eminent speakers will be present. The East Portland brass band has been engaged for this occasion. All Republicans should endeavor to be on hand and make this a grand success.

The Bark H. Reese will soon sail for Hong Kong with a full cargo of lumber and a large number of Chinese passengers.

Seeing the new moon over the right shoulder is considered a lucky omen, but most people would rather find a smooth quarter on the sidewalk.

Last Sunday a little son of a Mr. Schnurer who resides in the vicinity of Milwaukie fell from an apple tree and had his left elbow joint dislocated.

A large bonfire of dry shavings near the foot of I street, East Portland, last evening illuminated for a time the dark bosom of the placid Wallamet.

At the northwest corner of East Park and Main streets is a water tap which is uncovered. Before an accident occurs the box should be covered.

"Father's hair is turning gray" is the name of the latest sentimental ballad, and suggests to his heirs another beginning "Oh father dear why don't you die?"

An uptown girl lately sang "Darling I am growing old" with an expression so pertinent and forcible that her procrastinating lover was brought to time on the spot.

A cotemporary complains that the vacant lots on the river side of Front street near the foot of Morrison are used as a place for depositing garbage of all kinds. If such is the case the authorities should promptly stop the practice.

"Henry, why don't you keep a supply of cloves in your pocket?" said a young lady to her escort at the theatre the other night "you wouldn't then have to run out after every act and I don't see why you are so awful fond of cloves, anyhow."

"Rents have risen," was the jocose remark of the astute small boy when a nail caught in the previously small tear in his coat tail and ripped the garment up to his neck. Subsequently, after an interview with his parents he moaned to himself in the woodshed that leather had fallen."

AMUSEMENTS.

Another crowded pavilion greeted the second performance of the circus last evening. This afternoon at three o'clock a matinee performance will be given for the ladies and children. In order to afford an opportunity for all the school children to attend the matinee will commence at 3 o'clock, instead of 2. A very entertaining programme will be presented, both at the matinee and at the performance this evening. To-night the farewell exhibition will be given when there will be an entire change of programme introducing several novelties never before presented in Oregon and a number of new horses. The celebrated horse President and the Arabian stallion Abdel Kader will be introduced the former by Mr Kingsley, and the latter by Miss Linda.

Wilson's Colossal Roman Hippodrome and Circus will perform in Astoria on Friday evening. We can recommend it as one of the most complete exhibitions that has ever visited Oregon, the horses being superior to any ever seen here.

For the fall trade Beck & Waldman have opened a most extensive stock of clothings. The attention of those interested in the purchase of elegant and attractive as well as cheap-priced goods is respectfully directed to the display made at this house.

A M E ZION CHURCH. The members and well wishers of the above church are earnestly invited to attend a meeting to be held there on Wednesday evening October 20th at 7:30 o'clock, as business of importance is to be transacted before the departure of the pastor on the next steamer, to the sixth annual conference to be held at San Francisco in November. THE DOLLAR STORE.

AN AUSPICIOUS OPENING—MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY OF PLATED BRONZE PARIAN AND CHINA WARE—THE WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT TOYS AND FANCY GOODS &c &c

The disastrous fire of last September left a void in the commercial routine of affairs which has ever since been perceptibly felt. Not only did it destroy the most popular business locality in Portland, notably the corner of First and Alder streets, but by its fell sweep it obliterated several of the most attractive and enterprising business houses in the city and with them vanished the well known Dollar Store. But a business of that character was not destined to thus disappear forever. The fire demon had scarcely finished his work when active minds began planning for a renewal of their enterprise upon a scale that should eclipse all former undertakings. With this view Mr Henry Ackerman the senior partner of the firm started at once upon an eastern and European trip making large purchases in the principal cities and leaving extensive orders for the manufacture of special wares. In the meantime a large and well lighted store was secured opposite the old quarters. Connection was also made with an equally large store on First street having a vacant upper story, and the several were placed in proper condition as soon as possible. For the past two weeks steamers and sailing vessels have arrived laden with fresh invoices among them many novelties which for beauty and costliness are ahead of anything heretofore received in this market.

Last evening everything being in readiness the formal opening took place and as the doors swung open a sight was presented which was as brilliant and pleasing as it was surprising to the hundreds of visitors. On every hand we heard hearty commendations and it seemed as if the enterprise of the firm was fully appreciated by all who came to see.

In the retail department which fronts on First street, as we enter we pass to the right and the first display which meets our eyes is a tastefully arranged assortment of French German and American perfumeries and extracts. Then follow Parian marble goods in profusion and among these are some of the handsomest statuettes and mantel ornaments we have ever seen. The Bohemian vases in this department are also a feature, and the endless variety and style in which these goods are manufactured is truly wonderful. Upon the same side at the further end of the store is the dry goods department made up principally of hosiery table linens towelings, quilts and shawls. The counters are occupied by show cases filled with a thousand kinds of plated jewelry and fancy goods of every description. Upon the left as you enter is displayed to great advantage the Meriden Britannia Company's gold and silver plated ware. These goods impart a striking brilliancy to the store and every piece is a marvel of beauty and workmanship. The shelving on this side is also well filled with fancy ware albums music boxes, some of which are valued at $200, musical instruments and such like goods. Each article upon this side of the store is but a sample of what can be found in the whole sale department.

The show cases contain plated cutlery ordinary table cutlery ladies and gents dressing cases cigar and card cases work boxes and the queerest and funniest pen wipers we ever saw, center tables extend the entire length of the store. Upon these are placed samples of French, China, crockery and glass ware, bronze and glass lamps, cut and pressed glassware, and numerous other articles, all of latest designs. Sample bird cages, brackets wall pockets etc, are hung upon the wall while every nook and corner is filled with goods of some description. The front street store contains the bulk of the stock, and here everything that we have before mentioned, is duplicated. In addition there are baby carriages, rocking horses, picture frames glass globes, and anything you might wish, from a pin to a scrubbing brush or a little jumping jack to a four hundred pound baby. Up stairs has been set apart for toys and goods of that character, and an immense stock of these there certainly is. The assortment in this line is far superior to any heretofore maintained by the firm, and the holidays may come as soon as they please now. The Dollar store is prepared for any amount of trade.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

The pyramids themselves doting with age have forgotten the names of their founders.—Fuller

It is a cold lifeless business when you go to the shops to buy something which does not represent your life and talent but the goldsmith's.—Emerson

The heart will commonly govern the head and it is certain that any strong passion set the wrong way, will soon infatuate the wisest of men; therefore the first part of wisdom is to watch the affections.—Dr Waterland

There be three usual causes of ingratitude upon a benefit received: envy, pride and covetousness: envy looking more at others' benefits than our own; pride looking more at ourselves than the benefit; covetousness looking more at what we would have than what we have.—Bishop Hall

Imagination is that faculty which arouses the passions by the impression of external objects. It is influenced by these objects and consequently it is in affinity with them. It is contagious. Its fear or ardor flies from imagination to imagination the same. In love hate, joy or grief hence I conclude it to be a most subtle atmosphere.—Lord John Russell

Looking where others look and conversing with the same things we catch the charm which lured them. Napoleon said: "You must not fight too often with one enemy or you will teach him all your art of war." Talk much with any man of vigorous mind and we acquire very fast the habit of looking at things in the same light and on each occurrence we anticipate his thought.—Emerson

Out of the ashes of misanthropy benevolence rises again. We find many virtues where we imagined all was vile, many acts of disinterested friendship where we had fancied all was fraud and calculation—and so gradually from the two extremes we pass to the proper medium; and feeling that no human being is wholly good or wholly base we learn the true knowledge of mankind which induces us to expect little, and forgive much. The world cures alike the optimist and the misanthrope.—Bulwer Lytton

THE ANTIQUITY OF IRON.—According to the Iron Age, a wedge or plate of iron has been found imbedded in the masonry of one of the great Pyramids the indications being that it must have been wrought in the age of Cheops placed by some authorities as far back as 5400 years ago. This makes the use of iron about 2,000 years more ancient than it is supposed to be and affords opportunity for explaining the cutting of the sharp and well defined hieroglyphics on porphyry, granite and other hard stones employed in the construction of Egyptian pyramids, temples and tombs. How these could have been cut before the age of iron has been a puzzling question to many. Further investigation may show iron to have been in use 6,000 years ago.

The grass, the grass, the beautiful grass
That brightens this land of ours!
Oh why do we rudely let it pass
And only praise the flowers?
The blossoms of spring small joys would bring
And the summer bloom look sad
Were the earth not green and the distant scene
In its emerald tint not clad.

The grass, the grass, the feathery grass
That waves in the summer wind!
That stays when the flowers all fade and pass
Like an old friend behind!
That lends its charms to the valley fills
When the trees are stripped and bare
Oh the land would be like a wintry sea
Did the grass not linger there!

The grass, the grass, the beautiful grass,
Oh well may the gift endure.
That never was meant for creed or class
But grows both for rich and poor!
Long may the land be green and glad
Where the emerald turf is spread
May the bright green grass which we in earth we pass
Lie lightly o'er each head!

FIRE AT WALLA WALLA.

The following dispatches were received here yesterday by the O S N Company's line in relation to a most destructive conflagration which visited that place on Monday evening. The first dispatch is dated October 18th, at 8:30 o'clock P M.

There is a great fire raging here in the upper and central part of the town. It started from the kitchen of the Oriental hotel, and notwithstanding the great effort made to confine the flames to the one building in which they originated they soon spread and the following houses are now gone: Oriental hotel, Harry Howard's saloon, Putnam's stables, Chamberlain's church, Wertheimer & Bros' store, W N Stevens' house adjoining the hotel, Judge Sharpstein's law office, and I do not know how many more. The heat from the fire is so intense that it is impossible to get up street for the purpose of learning details and if a wind should rise, the town will be entirely destroyed. Several merchants on Main street are removing their goods from the stores.

LATER 9 P M.—The fire is now well under control and there is no danger of its spreading further. Eleven buildings are burned but Chamberlain's church will be saved. So far as known no one was injured. Fortunately there was no wind or the whole town would have gone.

Still later, October 19th. A fire broke out in this city last evening about 8 o'clock starting in the Oriental hotel, consuming eleven buildings in all. The following are the losses as near as can be arrived at: Sharpstein $300, Wertheimer Bros (goods), $2,500; Mitchell's barber shop, $100; Mr Stevens, two buildings $3,500; Oriental hotel, $8,000; Howard's saloon $1,500; Robinson's paint shop $500; Putnam's stables $1,500; three China houses $250; Reynolds & Day, $1,200; Vinegarholtz $100; Johnson, Rees & Winans $700. Total loss is figured at about $25,000.

A WELL DRESSED WOMAN

In the 'Nebulae' department of the Galaxy the N P (Nebulous person) gives this concerning a well dressed woman:

"The N P has seen a perfectly well dressed woman; has actually met her face to face looked upon her, and laid the unfading image of her aside in the most sacred recesses of his memory. She was not beautiful nor even pretty, and so madam you may let down your nostrils and uncurl the corners of your mouth. She had not even a fine figure in which very important respect she was only 'fair to middling,' as they say in trade. But as she approached the august presence the misty form was conscious of a subtle sense of pleasure. As she came nearer and nearer this increased, and when it became all too certain that it was not her beauty which awoke this delightful sensation there was a moment of thoughtful hesitation in the nebulous mind, and then it became clear enough that it was the woman's dress that was so beautiful and that it was the extreme rarity of this particular kind of beauty which made the sensation we have mentioned. Of course we must tell what this dress was. Nothing easier. It was a simple loose gown high upon the shoulders girdled closely but not tightly at the waist and falling in light easy folds, not to the ground but nearly to the ground behind and not quite so low before, so that as the woman walked not even the hem of her garments swept the sidewalk. There was not a flounce or a ruffle, or a plait, or a patch of trimming of any kind upon the dress, the skirt of which was ample enough to afford perfect ease of motion and to be graceful, but was not full, was not tied back, did not hang over a bustle, and there was no overskirt. The material was muslin, or some cotton stuff, and—oh madam! read, mark, and inwardly digest—it was not starched. It did not stand stiff, or break up into patches, or make a rustling and a crackling as she walked. It was soft in texture, soft in its outlines, and noiseless. Had it no ornament at all? Yes, indeed. Around the bottom hem, at the wrists and at the throat there was a narrow figured border of blue beautiful in design and in color, which gave the dress a perfect finish, and was attractive in itself without being at all obtrusive. Over this dress she wore a short, light garment of the same material, sleeveless and falling to the hips. This costume might have been worn by a Greek woman, by Aspasia herself, to the delight of Pericles, and yet there was nothing about it which seemed outré or even strange, except its simple elegance. Who the woman was who thus clothed herself with beauty will probably ever remain a nebulous fact in the modern history of costume."

DOCT AYER'S LABORATORY, that has done such wonders for the sick now issues a potent restorer for the beauty of mankind—for the comeliness which advancing age is so prone to diminish and destroy. His VIGOR mounts luxuriant locks on the bald and gray pates among us and thus lays us under obligations to him for the good looks as well as health of the community.

CAUTION!

Having satisfied ourselves that certain dealers are selling inferior goods which they represent as our manufacture, we therefore caution the public against such misrepresentations.

Any person buying goods, sold as OUR MAKE, which should not give satisfaction will confer a favor upon the undersigned by transmitting a sample thereof, together with the name of the firm who sold the same. We will then be enabled to prosecute parties guilty of palming off base imitations for goods of our manufacture.

[illegible] the country [illegible] the fall [illegible] upon a dull summer's [illegible] market still hold in re[illegible] some articles of commerce but the land is [illegible] fruitful harvest especially of breadstuffs for which the rates such [illegible] a great [illegible] the harvest year though the full supplies in the markets of Europe from other sources at present may tend to keep prices low for awhile. With any advance in prices [illegible] the water a great deal of life would be infused into the market here and our [illegible] would move with more rapidity than many anticipate and say what we will [illegible] that with [illegible] activity in the movement of the grain crop we can look for little life in financial matters. There are [illegible] the products of the soil are the main sources of addition to the permanent capital of the state [illegible] true Oregon ought to show a [illegible] growth in material wealth when the surplus [illegible] of the past [illegible]

The amount of capital in general circulation in the community is perhaps as great in volume as the average while the banks and lending institutions have often held much less than at present but the conservative policy which is somewhat strictly pur[illegible] gives an appearance of closeness that [illegible] actually exist. There is not a surplus in the monetary supply available for trade purposes but there is no reason to apprehend any serious drawback to commercial matters as likely to result from a lack of funds.

About Wheat.

The great bulk of the Oregon wheat crop was [illegible] good condition this year and cannot but compare very favorably with that from other countries in the great grain markets of the world. For in[illegible] than the usual number of cases we hear [illegible] parts of the United States. An exchange from the East of [illegible] states that the very wet weather throughout the Northwest from the [illegible] of August until the 10th of September greatly retarded the [illegible] of wheat then after the crop was secured thrashing was delayed and in many localities the roads have been impassable hence we [illegible] very liberal supplies of spring [illegible] at the close of the year.

In some western states there is said to be so little wheat that is really sound there is no [illegible] merchants to forward it to the coast; the shrinkage in it is so great the consumption thus far is out of proportion to the supply and the prices so very low that business men are at a loss what to do with it, more especially now that warehousemen decline to receive it and guarantee the weight. Latest advices from the winter wheat states more than confirm previous statements of the damage done the crops by the spring frosts and January [illegible] but this will be more apparent when the old wheat is exhausted. Most dealers have been disappointed at the course of European markets since the 20th of August but the fact is they as a rule have anticipated too much the great pressure of supplies (many of them of very poor quality) upon the Liverpool, Glasgow and London markets has been nearly double the quantity of the corresponding time last year and until those markets are relieved from this great burden, can we count on a more healthy and satisfactory state of things.
